Historic Trails, Majestic Scenery and Favorable Weather Inspire Riders on 23rd Annual Trek to The Skyline.

By J. M. Gibbon

THE TERRAIN covered by the memorable Trail Rides of 1947 had more than usual historic interest. If we had had Dan McCowan with us he could have told us, no doubt, of the geology and the palaeontology which shaped the cliffs, snowpeaks, glaciers and lakes comprising the scenery. But Dan was tied to Banff and Lake Louise.

However, we did have some with us who could account for the old blazes on the trail west of Simpson Summit—blazes reminiscent of the days when the Kootenays and the Stony Indians made exchange visits, alternating between the Bow Valley and the Upper Kootenay Lakes, and who had worn the trails deep in between. Then we passed the stones marking the Great Divide between Alberta and British Columbia, and above all the stone commemorating the campsite of Sir George Simpson, Governor of the Hudson's Bay Company, and his overland trip 'round the world in 1841.

Simpson Blaze Preserved

Some of us remembered that a blaze cut on a tree with the initials of Simpson and his guide, James Rowand, had been removed by the late Jim Brewster and was preserved in the Brewster residence at Banff. Bill Brewster was able to point to the decayed, whitened trunk of the tree from which the blaze had been removed.

Our trail took us to Redearth Pass, in which we saw a signpost pointing to Eohippus Lake—named after the prehistoric horses who presumably once roamed this territory, and memorable for one very wet Trail Riders' camp. Then we came to a lake on a ledge of Monarch Mountain, where our camp of teepees had been pitched. Here we were under the shelter of trees, while a further protection against stormy weather was provided by a snow-edged ridge on Monarch Mountain which later we found fringed a most delightful alpine meadow.

The trail through this meadow, one of the loveliest in these comparatively untravelled parts of the Canadian Rockies, provided one of the routes for a visit to Egypt Lake, about 11 miles distant. The other route followed the valley northwards, and crossed a ridge which commanded a spectacular view of our camp and its background. The whole area was criss-crossed with game trails, and we suggested to Bruce Mitchell of the Parks Branch that a chart should be prepared for the benefit of future trail riders and hikers, as it might well become one of the most popular in the Banff district. Sunshine Lodge, as we all know, is extremely inviting, and might well become as busy a place in summer as it is during the skiing season of winter.

Camp Experiment Succeeds

Those who took part in the first of the two camps enjoyed perfect weather with only one night of rain, and that helped to cool the atmosphere. The second camp had more wind and rain, yet not enough to destroy the enjoyment of the Trail Riders.

The experiment of holding two camps of about 60 riders at each has proved definitely successful. With our limited equipment, it is easier to handle those who wish to join the Trail Ride and experienced guides are still not so easy to secure. One of the innovations adopted for future camps is the appointment of a camp matron whose duties will be to initiate the younger members into the etiquette of camp life and to provide a liaison between them and the older members. We have to thank Dr. Price, our new president, for his continued interest in the Trail Ride and for the provision of a camp doctor to take his place on the first Trail Ride when he himself was unable to leave his practice.

Send Them Early!

● Applications for the 1948 Trail Ride should be sent to the secretary-treasurer, accompanied by a $10.00 deposit. Applications should be sent early in order to avoid disappointments and over-crowding of the rides at the last minute.

12-Day Ride For Vets

Our Pioneers Were Hardy Souls

Day's Ride of 30 Miles Nothing in Those Days Recalls Nostalgic Scribe.

By H. Travers Coleman

THE suggestion that Trail Riders should try a 12-day ride, (in addition to the regular annual rides) limited to old timers or those who have had considerable experience in the saddle on the trail, should be welcomed by all those who recall the trail rides of bygone years when life was rugged, but beautiful.

With the five-day set-up and fixed central camp, there was great danger that the Trail Riders would get soft and steam-heated—that they would leave camp late in the morning and come home early in the evening to loll about under the mountain skies and listen to the marmots softly whiffing to their mates.

The 12-day ride idea with two or three camps, takes riders back almost to the beginning when riders had hair on their chests—and needed it—to fend off the cold night air.

This correspondent is by way of being a youngster in the trail ride councils, when placed alongside our founding father, J. M. Gibbon, and his earliest associates. Yet within my memory the Trail Ride has been translated into a very different thing since my first exposure to the rigors of life and riding in the high places back in 1935.

In those days you got up on a horse—never mind how—and stayed there as best you could. Next day you got up and did the same, no matter how you felt or how many bones and unrealized muscles cried out in pitiful protest—no dawdling around camp. You arose, painfully in some cases, straightened up as best you could, dutifully packed your duffle, rolled up your sleeping bag, dumped duffle and sleeping bag on the big mound where the packers were at work, and headed for the cook tent.

Then, after the usual four cups of coffee, eight slices of bacon, four or five eggs, sunnyside up, you were ready for the tasks of the day, well . . . almost ready. There was the business of getting up into that saddle again to remind you of life's grimmer torments.

Sometimes, when the wind blows from the north, the storm windows rattle in their casements, and the milkman's footsteps sound hollowly on the crisp ground, my mind turns back some 12 years to that July day in 1935 when we rode to Windy Camp.

They told me later that we rode 27 miles that first day; others swore it was more like 30; some of the newcomers allowed it couldn't have been less than 50. There was no Claude Brewster outfit in those days. The outfitter we had lost pack horses on the trail so that we rode into camp about 10.00 p.m. to find only a few of the teepees up and hardly a sign of duffle. That was the night we dropped where we landed and slept the sleep of exhaustion on piles of horse blankets and pack mantles. Only Bert Hall's steaming hot clam chowder saved us from a horrible end.

Then, not so far back, came Eohippus and the deluge.

It was the same way with the Trail Hikers, too. A daily march on what Carl Rungius used to describe as "foot-back", then a camp, and tomorrow the trail again and another camp where you could remove the smoking footwear and contemplate the new crop of bunions.

It was somewhere around Redearth Pass, if I remember correctly, that I found myself late one afternoon alongside that famous woodsman, Dan McCowan, and his spouse. Glad I was to have such experienced guides, for the trails lay above timberline with only Suggestions . . .

Passing on trail is dangerous. Besides, you're in no hurry.

Do you snore? That's too bad. Hunt another teepee.

Let's keep our camp spots clean. Throw all refuse on the campfire.

Smoking on the trail just isn't done.

Gals! We roll the guides out at 6:00 A.M. Don't keep the poor guy up all night.

Check your saddle cinches. If loose, tell your guide. He'll fix it.

Horse racing is sorta risky, resulting in an occasional bad spill. Take it easy kids.

That box in the stream is our refrigerator. You may be purty and plenty sweet, but we're ornery enough to ask that you bathe downstream. D'y'mind?

Please return your eating utensils to the scullery. Don't hide 'em in the weeds, please.

If your partner dismounts, wait for him. Don't ride off till he's mounted again.

If your horse throws a shoe, tell your guide.

If your horse throws you, start screamin' for the Doc. He'll glue you back together.

Don't abuse the cook. He's gotta learn sometime.

Trail Riders Welcome New Executive Members

GREETINGS to our incoming executive members!

We can't think of a better way to devote this space than to congratulate our new officers on their election and say "Thank-you" and "Welcome back for another term" to those who are continuing in office.

Here are the new executive members who will guide our destinies for the 1947-48 term:

President—Dr. Harold W. Price, Calgary, Alta.

Vice-Presidents — Miss Ethel "Tillie" Knight, Banff, Alta.; Mrs. Fern Clarkson, Banff, Alta.

Executive Committee—Miss Jean Stewart, Fort William, Ont.; Wallace Kirkland, Chicago, Ill.; Claude Brewster, Banff, Alta.; J. A. Hutchison, Banff, Alta.; G. H. Dempster, Field, B.C.

Trail Committee—Claude Brewster, Banff, Alta.; G. H. Dempster, Field, B.C.; J. A. Hutchison, Banff, Alta.

Mr. and Mrs. J. W. Orkney of Yakima, Wash., pause to enjoy the snow-flecked skyline.

Win that trophy!

CALLING all camera fans!

This means you—even though you own nothing more than a one dollar (pre-war) box type camera . . . or if you have to stand behind the sun to get a picture.

We're not trying to sell you something. We're trying to give you something. And if you're any kind of a camera fan you'll probably know what it is. Sure, it's that TOWNSEND TROPHY.

This handsome silver cup, awarded annually for what the judges consider the top-notch "pic of the ride" is again up for competition and eagerly waiting for the name of the 1947 winner to be inscribed on its shiny surface!

There is no reason why it should'nt be yours. Here is what you get for the winning photo:

- (1) Winner's name inscribed on the Townsend Trophy.
- (2) A small replica of the original cup.
- (3) Winning photograph reproduced (king size) in the Bulletin.

Here are a few pointers to bear in mind when submitting your entries:

- (1) Photographs should be printed in glossy finish.
- (2) Photos should be no larger than 8" x 10" in size. (Those little "'s mean "inches").
- (3) Name of the photographer must be contained in sealed envelope, on the outside of which is printed a "nom de plume" to identify the sender, the same "nom de plume" to be printed plainly on the back of each entry submitted.
- (4) Photos should not be submitted later than March 1, 1948.
- (5) Send all entries to the Editor.

The Scenes at Right

The photos at right illustrate a few intimate glimpses of camp life during the 1947 Trail Ride. Though you'll probably recall the circumstances and recognize the individuals we'll give you a brief descriptions of what goes on.

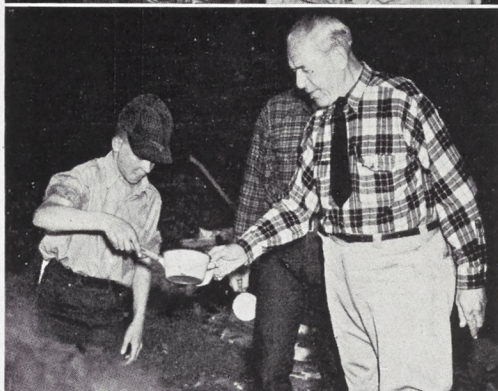

Top: This shot is convincing evidence that nights are anything but balmy more than a mile above sea level. These ladies apparently know that a hot water bottle goes well with a sleeping bag in the Canadian Rockies.

Second down: "Yes, Mr. President, tea or coffee?" "They both taste the same" quips Sidney Hollander, of Baltimore, Md., and president of the 1947 contingent. It's hot, though, and that's the main thing.

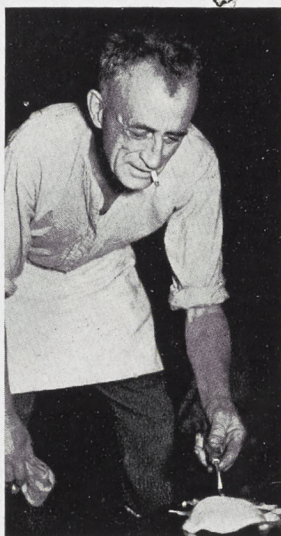

Third Down: Mealtime in trail ride fashion calls for skill at times after the conventional mode. Here Mrs. Curtis Bogert of Baltimore, Md., takes on the salad course.

Bottom: Handing out the duffle can be a weighty problem but it seems to present no problem to these smiling teepee folk. At left is Smokey Patton and right Joan Lindsay. Inside the teepee we see Curt Bogert of Baltimore, Md.

BEDTIME, MEALTIME AND MOVING TIME AROUND CAMP

LOOK WHAT THE CANDID CAMERA CAUGHT

These honey little scenes, as we all remember, were taken within the limits of our base camp. At left we see the Battle of the Air Mattress, featuring Curt Bogert of Baltimore, Md. and at centre we present Walter Potts and his flapjacks (Mmmmmm!). No 3 right: Frank Arnott relates a story to a pretty Trail Rider.

Trail Ride Float Wins First Prize

By Tillie Knight

The Calgary Stampede and Exhibition rolled along in early July. Claude Brewster and his cowboys put their Stetsons back on their heads, did some tall scheming and planning—and what do you know, we had a Trail Ride float in the parade.

The float represented a pack train outfit with a large teepee set on a truck, folks sitting around the campfire singing and outriders of trail riders. And, the good news about this "Banff, Trail Riders of the Canadian Rockies" float is that said float wins first prize (darn good for the first day, eh what?).

Our Calgary Stampede is known far and wide and the many visitors that were there, including Everett Colborn of Dublin, Texas, who supplies all the rodeo stock for Madison Square Garden and Fort Worth, got an earful of our Canadian trail riding.

After judging of the Best Ladies boots Smokey won a prize, but lost money on the bangtails. (But should I tell that?)—Don Mackay of CJCJ interviewed both Smokey and myself and asked us all about Trail Riders. You can depend that we shot our best line.

Fotofans Were Happy

THE spectacular route of the 1947 ride was a source of delight to fotofans!

Though it would be exaggeration to say that the click of the camera kept pace with the click of the horse's hoof the shutter addicts were having their biggest field day in many a moon.

With the exception of a mere handful, the photos appearing in this issue were taken by Bill Round of Banff. Other members too have contributed photos which we plan to use in the next issues.

But don't let this lead you to complacency. We are ever on the lookout for good Trail Ride pictures and will welcome any you wish to contribute. These will be returned on request.

EDITOR

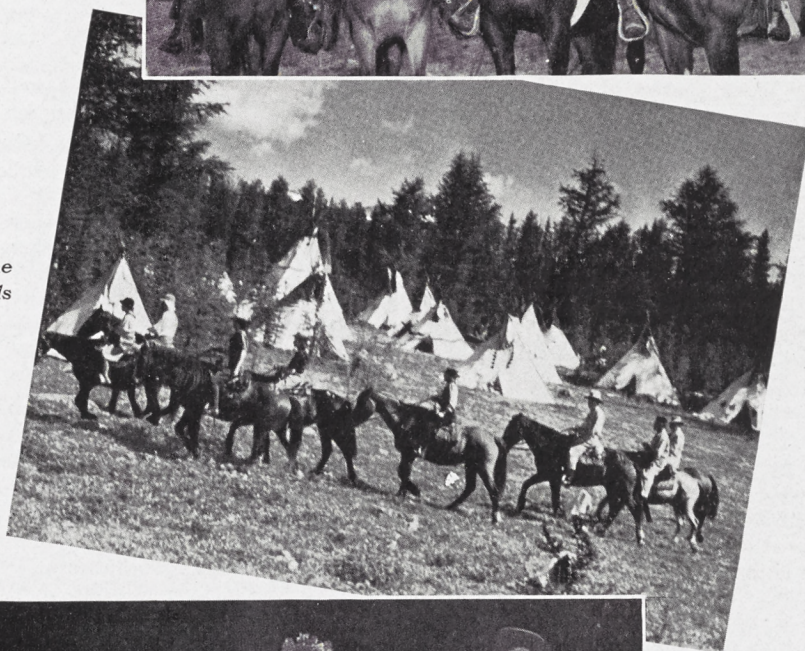

Thinking that a goodwill tour to some of our country rodeos would promote interest in the Trail Ride, Smokey and I accepted an invitation to the Claresholm Stampede in June. Unfortunately the weatherman turned from the sunny side to "Downpour" and the rodeo final events had to be called off. However, Saturday afternoon came along bright and sunny and the folks all turned out for a mammoth parade through the town. That evening, the rodeo committee turned its attentions to a big dance and games in the community skating rink. Members in the community were very hospitable. Cowboys let us ride their top roping horses, then invited us to a real old chicken fry and dance. Another year, here's hoping we can get a gang together and go down to Claresholm.

Shrubs of the Trail-Side

by DAN McCOWAN

AT THIS bleak season of the year, when snow lies deep and winds blow chill, it is pleasant to sit by the hearth and to recall to memory former trail rides in the scenic heart of the Canadian Rockies. Crackling pine logs and the odor of wood smoke conjure up visions of bygone camp fires, of fragrant green forest, of clear sparkling streams and lakes and of flower decked uplands far above timber-line.

In such mood, and having dealt with sundry birds, animals, flowers and trees in previous issues of the trail ride magazine, it occurred to me that some consideration might be given to common shrubs of the region. Hence, the following lines which may possibly prove helpful to you when the winter is past and gone and the time for trail riding has come again.

To describe, or even to list, the great array of shrubs rooted in the Banff-Lake Louise area would require much more space than is available in this Bulletin now in your hands. Therefore I shall in brief deal with those which may readily be seen by the trail side and on meadows where teepees are customarily pitched.

Tea not recommended

Pride of place might well be given to woolly Labrador tea. It is a small shrub which, in leaf and flower, looks like a midget rhododendron and is widespread throughout the Rockies and in many other parts of Canada. From the shiny leaves, rust-red and fuzzy on the under side, a beverage may be infused. However, it might be well to state that as the western variety of this shrub is considered poisonous, one should perhaps refrain from brewing a pot and quaffing a bowl of this native bohea while on a trail ride.

Bearberry or kinnikinick forms an ever-green mat which covers an immense area of the western mountains. It is a low trailing shrub with dainty pink flowers, somewhat like those on heath and heather, and, later, with bright red berries. This fruit, retained all through the winter, forms valuable source of food to resident birds during snowy season and to migrants coming home in spring. The leaves of bearberry are occasionally used as substitute for pipe tobacco, but only as a last resource. Were it ever found necessary to fumigate a teepee, which is doubtful, the acrid fumes from smouldering kinnikinick leaves would prove highly satisfactory. A sprig from this shrub is the badge of the Clan Colquhoun.

Rich in Vitamin C

The wild rose, floral emblem of the Province of Alberta, is perhaps best known and best loved of all shrubs. Its colorful fragrant flowers, so characteristic of mid-summer in the Rockies, are ever a delight to the way-farer on woodland trails. The ripe red fruit is remarkably rich in vitamin C, in fact rose hip juice is vastly superior to that of the orange in life-giving qualities.

That sagacious bird the Canada jay, familiar around trail ride camps, has long been aware of the value of wild rose fruit as a tonic. Feeding freely on rose hips in autumn the shrewd whisky jacks are thereby fortified against the rigors of a northern winter. That the nimble chipmunks remain spry, even in old age, may be attributed to a steady autumn diet of wild rose fruit.

Devil's Club

Soapberry, common everywhere in Bow Valley woods, is a highly ornamental shrub, particularly around trail ride season, when the fruit is ripe. Some of these bushes bear scarlet berries whilst on others the fruit is orange colored. Yet in general form and in leaf all look alike. Pulped in the hand the ripe berries form a lather such as one constantly hears about on the radio, hence the common name of the shrub. The juice, beaten to a light froth, was highly esteemed as a sort of vegetable candy floss by Indian children of an earlier generation.

Bears Expert Berry Pickers

During autumn all black bears devote much time to berry picking. In the pine woods at Banff their favorite fruit is that culled from soapberry shrubs and as expert berry pickers these otherwise clumsy animals have no equals. Using the lips and tongue they will strip a bush of all fruit in but a minute or two and that without breaking a twig or plucking a leaf.

Here and there, alongside pony trails, you may discover the shrub called common juniper. In the Rockies it is of prostrate growth and from its bluish berries the potent beverage called gin was formerly distilled. Wood ash from burnt juniper twigs is said to be a superlative dentrifice but as all tooth pastes and powders are so extolled, one hesitates to commend, from hearsay only, this product from the pharmacy of Mother Nature.

Few visitors to the Canadian Rockies, other than trail riders and trail hikers, ever see mountain rhododendron. This is perhaps the most beautiful native flowering shrub in the Dominion and the sight of a high hillside thickly covered with these bushes in full bloom is a memorable experience to all nature lovers. The creamy-white, rose-tipped flowers are not at all like those on garden rhododendron, in fact they much more resemble orange blossom. Growing at high altitudes in the mountains of Alberta and British Columbia it steadfastly refuses to come down in the world. Otherwise this handsome and fragrant shrub would speedily find an honored place in seedsmen's catalogues and in gardens everywhere.

While there is no poison ivy, nor any harmful snake, in the Canadian Rockies, I trust that you may never come in contact with that fearsome shrub called devil's club. Even the botanical name—fatsia horrida—betokens something unpleasant. To put it mildly, devil's club is of robust growth with stout woody stems and enormous leaves. The stems, the twigs and even the leaves simply bristle with large thorny spikes capable of rending the garments, and the pelt, of unwary travelers. The flower head on each of these formidable bushes is not particularly attractive but the resultant bunch of crimson berries forms a striking spot of color in the dense green underwoods. Devil's club shuns the Banff-Lake Louise area which, so far as I am concerned, is all to the good. In the Selkirk mountains it thrives prodigiously.

Waxwing's Delight

The mountain ash, or rowan, is also more at home on the western slope of the Rockies than on the Saskatchewan watershed. In Yoho Valley and at Emerald Lake it seldom gains tree stature and girth but nevertheless is a really fine shrub, fragrant in summer, colorful in autumn, beloved of the birds but most of all by the well-groomed and mild-mannered waxwings.

But for the editor whetting his pruning shears I might go on to tell you about a shrub which yields Rocky Mountain olives—about gooseberry bushes who proffer first aid to hummingbirds and about the twelve or fourteen varieties of willow from which wooden legs were formerly fashioned but which today have little value save as food for moose and as hiding places to artful pack and saddle horses at daybreak on a sky line trail ride.

A Few Notes On Our New President

"PRICE, Dr. Harold W., Calgary, Alta."

That's how our new president is listed in the last issue of the Trail Ride Bulletin under the heading of "250 Miles Upwards."

Dr. Price's career in the saddle, however, is by no means confined to his official trail ride mileage. One of his favorite week-end hobbies is riding the range at his Ghost River ranch west of Calgary and during the spring round-up he likes nothing better than to assist with the roping and branding.

Dr. Price is also a veteran of the sky trails in the first World War. Leaving school to enlist in the air force he held the rank of a lieutenant in the R.F.C. and the R.A.F. Mentioned in despatches for outstanding service, Dr. Price flew the first scientist over the now famous Mosul oil fields, then undeveloped. His flying exploits throughout the war were centred over Mesopotamia.

Toronto-born, Dr. Price received his B. A. degree at University of Toronto and his M.D. at John Hopkins University in Baltimore where he was a Rockefeller Fellow in plastic surgery. Before going west he was resident physician at the Sick Children's Hospital in Toronto.

In 1928 Dr. Price joined the Calgary Associate Clinic and is now head of the department of pediatrics.

Dr. Price is not the only trail riding fan in his family. His wife wears the silver pin of 100 miles and over while his three young daughters' greatest yen is to grow up quickly and join the trail ride with their dad.

The president's foremost hobby—next to his ranch—is color photography with the accent on mountain shots. A photographer of no mean calibre, Dr. Price was in charge of aerial photography for his unit during his career in the air force.

His ranch—the Bar HP—is where Dr. Price spends his happiest leisure hours. Located on the Ghost River in the Foothills 40 miles west of Calgary, Dr. Price purchased the ranch as "an escape from the telephone". Here the entire family motors for week ends to ride the range and shake the city dust from their feet. Here too Dr. Price raises pure-bred Aberdeen Angus stock in which he takes considerable and pardonable pride.

His ranch boss, Laurie Johnston, has been chief cowboy for the Trail Riders on many occasions while daughter Donna's expert horsemanship has been familiar trail ride talk for a number of seasons. Dr. Price's proudest moment was when he was taken for an "oldtimer" during a round-up.

Other affiliations include the following: Licentiate of the American Board of Pediatrics, Fellow of the American Academy of Pediatrics, Fellow of the Academy of Medicine, Toronto; Member of the British Medical Association, Honorary Life Member of the St. John Ambulance Association and a divisional surgeon of a local St. John Brigade.

Alpine Lake Named For our 1947 President

When Trail Riders left their camp last summer the little lake on which riders were encamped was richer by one name. This was Hollander Lake, named after Sidney Hollander, president of the 1947 contingent and a Trail Rider and Sky Line Trail Hiker of many years' standing.

The name was decided upon at a meeting in the chief's teepee while the actual christening took place in the big Sundance Tent during the Banff pow-wow. For the occasion a bottle of lake water was flown to Banff and broken over the centre teepee pole by Dr. Harold W. Price, the new president.

The request to make the naming "official" has been filed with the Dominion Government from which approval is expected at any time.

occasional rocks piled in tiny cairns to mark the way of the transgressor and the hiker.

It started to snow then, one of those quick summer flurries in the high country which are gone almost before they start. This one, however, seemed to be quite a storm while it lasted, and after wondering where we were, heading in several wrong directions, while Dan, with nose industriously to the spoor and his gay tam-o-shanter waving bravely in the breeze, brought us back somehow to the right track, we spied in the near distance what appeared to be a first class forest fire.

We followed the trail to camp and there stood Wilf Carter the yodelling cowboy piling trees, not branches onto a roaring fire. Wilf, an old homesteader from away back, had sensed the predicament of his hiking friends and was lighting the beacon to guide them homeward. For this, I kissed him on both cheeks, and in my best Russian dialect presented him with the Order of the Russian Bear, with palms.

Later efforts to toss me on the fire to augment the already considerable blaze were vetoed by Dan McCowan and other leading woodsmen present, not on humanitarian grounds, I fear, but from the practical consideration that such a large addition of suet in such problematical combustible form might create a smoke which would be objectionable to the more refined members of the party.

That was the famous night when John Murray Gibbon, George Mitchell, the New York artist, and Edna Jacques, Canada's little poetess from Saskatchewan, got themselves lost on the pass. At least every one thought they were lost, but it developed that only the members of the search parties were lost. Our founder and his little group chatted amiably on diverse topics of cultural interest while they walked companionably

This cartoon appearing in the October, 1944, issue depicts a well-remembered event in more recent Trail Ride history.

out to Marble Canyon, or some other place, and next day they rode into camp on horseback wondering what all the excitement was about.

It is somehow interesting to look back on those days and to realize that men and women still in the middle prime can recall when trail riding and hiking were arts of the rugged sort calling for stamina and exertion beyond present-day standards. We can regard the new rider as the old settler on the plains watches with some suspicion and faint derision the activities of the modern farmer with multiple power-pulled gang plows and combine reapers.

Some of the trail's old timers, to be truthful, never fully subscribed to the idea of the central camp with daily rides therefrom which despite all manner of ingenuity on the part of the trail committee, necessitated riding over the same trails. The introduction of such antics as Indian wrestling on bareback, and packing competitions where dudes paired with guides to be judged on skill and time, struck some of the Rockies' greybeards as high-faluting nonsense introduced cunningly in the spirit of the dude ranch. They were willing to ignore the excited shrieks of the contestants, and the happy roars of the onlookers vouchsafing their enjoyment. To them Trail Riding was a grim business with which there could be no compromise short of an aching seat and legs that creaked with every step.

And now Trail Riders of the Canadian Rockies talk of turning back the clock, and returning to the progressive camp idea, this time on a ride of 12 days which seems tailored to order for a lot of riders who would welcome the opportunity to spend those extra hours in the saddle, pushing on over the trail that leads to the valley beyond, to the unknown views ahead which are the lodestone of all travelers, through all ages and in all lands.

With them would be riding the unseen hosts of Tom Wilsons, Jim Brewsters, George Simpsons and Dr. Rundles of another era, the men who wanted to see what was behind the other mountain. Perhaps Byron Harmon would be there to unlimber his big camera and shoot the scenes he loved so well.

It would be a real gathering of the old timers and the talk around the campfires should have a reminiscent flavor as they compare today's riding with the old days. It is understood that while there would not be a new camp every night, there would be a progression of camps, but with enough "layover" time to permit the use of fishing tackle, cameras, and to permit the torn tissues to mend.

Claude's Men Returning

The load would fall on Claude Brewster and his outfit, but with the war over, many of Claude's good trail men are back and available, and they should meet the assignment with customary skill. The experiment is well worth the trouble, and the Trail Ride's present mentors are to be congratulated on thinking of it.

There are those who visualize a series of trail rides, under the Order's auspices, continuing through the whole season, and offering rides of varying duration through the selected parts of the parks.

The five-day ride, ideal for short vacationists, is said to be too short for some riders. "We just get started, it seems, and then it's all over!" is a frequently-heard statement. The 12-day ride, if it is adopted on a permanent basis, is the answer to that complaint. There could also be considered rides of seven and 10 days, for it is possible for many riders, within the space of a fortnight's vacation, to arrange that much time on the trail.

The idea has interesting possibilities. As to the system ultimately adopted time and tomorrow's trail riders will tell.

A Trail Rider Goes East

WRONG-WAY CORRIGAN had nothing on Wrong-way Hoffmeyer! The former may have got his directions mixed somewhere over the Atlantic but our ex-president headed east for adventure. That for a trail rider, let alone an ex-president, is of course unpardonable.

Keith, however, gets the last laugh. Proceeding eastward from Indianapolis he not only found mountains, canyons, and horses, but also his trail riding pals and super-hospitality. We'll let Keith take it from here as we quote in part a letter received from our genial "ex-pres" by Dr. J. Murray Gibbon.

Your ex-president became a trifle confused recently and headed east. And, believe it or not, he found mountains, canyons, horses and trail ride pals of yesterday.

A delightful visit with the Wischmeyers found yours truly enthusiastically hiking through the wilderness of a Pittsburgh park and devouring steak in the neighboring Laurel Mountains in true Trail Rider fashion.

Then Philadelphia and thatman Diverty! If you have never enjoyed a "Union League" special, and the hospitality of the Diverty's—You just have not lived. Marsh can even find horses for you if the occasion demands.

On to New York City—into the deep dark canyons of Wall Street—and its bears. The towering peak of the Empire State Bldg.—impressive amid mountains of stone and steel. And was I happy to find Trav. Coleman! The antics of Boris Torizpantsoff (Trav.) will set back the United Nations 1000 years.

Imagine, if you can, our Trail Riders' reunion, with Mabel, Trav, Dave, and Lorna Oliver going full blast! Luckily (?) for Carl Rungius, he was still hunting in Banff!

Next day, Little Sir Echo (Oliver Whiting of London) was discovered in this maze of towering structures and abandoned all business to relive his happy trail ride experiences.

Then, braving the perils of Central Park, your ex-president, who, according to Claude Brewster, couldn't track an elephant through six feet of snow, found a trail of rice and tracked down the honeymooners!

Georgia Engelhard, now the charming Mrs. Cromwell, was scintillating in a gorgeous gown (now why was I expecting blue jeans) Tony was his usual debonair self, his cuisine putting Giovanni to shame! Georgia kept in trim by ascending precarious steps of a kitchen stool to obtain edibles for the further delight of yours truly. Any evening with the Cromwells leaves you fairly oozing with good cheer and happiness!

A trek to Forest Hills found yours truly receiving a typical trail riders' welcome at the lovely "teepee" of Mr. & Mrs. Dale Carnegie. Your ex-president rapidly briefed himself in the gentle art of winning friends and influencing people.

Although they have never participated in an official ride, the Carnegie's are ardent lovers of the Canadian Rockies, and enthusiastic trail riders.

Thus went the invasion of the east. May we all meet again, soon, in the Canadian Rockies.

Keith E. Hoffmeyer.

Right off the Cob

A feeble minded individual, mounted on an equally feeble looking cayuse, was jogging over Simpson Summit sprinkling the trail with a white powdery substance.

"What on earth are you doing that for?" asked an interested Trail Rider.

"It's to keep the lions away," replied the party of the first part.

"But there are no lions on Simpson Summit," replied the amazed wearer of the 100-miles-and-over button.

"Just as well, too," said the mentally sketchy horseman, "this powder's no darn good anyway".

A lady visited a psychiatrist's office leading a trail ride horse by the halter.

The doctor looked first at the horse, then at the lady, adjusted his spectacles, and addressed the lady sympathetically:

"Good morning Madam, I can see you're suffering some distress. Now just what seems to be the trouble?"

"Oh, it's not me, doctor," she said, "I'm quite alright. It's my husband here; he thinks he's a horse."

Hollywood in the Rockies

Dining Car Crew "On Location"

WHAT is it like to prepare 6,400 breakfasts, lunches and dinners and feed a whole company of movie stars, trained dogs, extras, and technicians while travelling on a special train each weekday for a month to and from location in the Rockies? Ask the kitchen and dining car crew of the Canadian Pacific special assigned to the Eagle Lion Film Company who made the film entitled "Northwest Stampede" last summer, with the locale at High River, near Calgary and around the beauty spots of Banff!

Hollywood stars Joan Leslie, Jack Oakie and James Craig and two trained dogs, Blaze and Flame, together with all the personnel required to make a film, were fed right on the dot each mealtime with the same precision as if they were stationed on a Hollywood set. The train rushed on to location from Calgary into the Rockies and again out of Banff each day, with kitchen chefs and the dining room waiters keeping a fast eye on the clock and a sharp eye on the enormous list of dishes, food, drink, cooking equipment, tableware and linen that had to be transported on each trip to the exact spot where the shooting was being done. No time could be lost and not even a spoon nor a doughnut could be forgotten. It was a case of the work being carried on as fast as the train travelled and on a schedule where each pair of hands worked with precision.

Breakfast was served on the train as it left Calgary each morning. Then luncheon was prepared. This was the biggest problem as it had to be transported from the train to the spot where the filming was being done, often 35 miles away by bus. The food and drink were packed or poured into huge thermos containers and likewise huge cartons. It was necessary to use speed in the packing so that the hot food and drink would stay hot and the cold would be cold when ready to serve. Two waiters would alight from the train, take the first bus to location, set up the tables, and have everything in readiness for the crew who followed with the food. In less than an hour after disembarking from the train, the lunch would already be started on by the hungry movie colony.

And such a lunch! There would be hot soup, roast beef, carved on the spot, vegetables, potatoes, gravy, bread and butter, custards and puddings, salads, pickles, sauces, tea, coffee and milk, and, of course, there would be the condiments. The two dogs consumed a quantity of ground beef or horse meat between scenes.

"How do you like your roast beef?" asks beautiful Joan Leslie, starring in "North-west Stampede" during its filming near Calgary last summer, of another favorite, Jack Oakie. "Rare", says Jack. Bill Vincent, C.P.R. chef, laughs at the comedy.

Then followed the clearing up and the washing of dishes and the carting back of all the containers to the train. In the meantime the scene was shot, the cameras swung around and the story was being unfolded in the heart of the Rockies.

Dinnertime came around when the actors and actresses boarded the train again for Calgary.

Responsible for this gigantic task of feeding so many from one tiny train kitchen and dining car were, Steward H. E. Derkson; Chef W. Vincent; Second Cook P. Yutsyk; Third Cook L. Rownyj; Fourth Cook B. O. Morrison; Pantryman G. A. Edwards, and Waiters V. Luft, P. Daniels, F. Kiel, C. Kelln and A. Cadieu.

Corral Chatter...

ALONG the Lariat Moose Trail there's health, happiness and Cupid mixing it out with Trail Riders.

● To Health—The cheeriest news has been received from Edith Lauer from her home in Baltimore. The die is cast—no the cast is off—and Edith is walking and getting about just dandy. Her wrist is much better and anyone wanting a check or a letter just drop a line to Edith at 2513 Talbot Road, Baltimore, Md., and you will hear how well this famous Trail Rider has recovered.—To all the folks who gave her such a helping hand, Edith sends her heartiest thanks. Instead of the thought of coming to Banff and riding herd on the verandah of a hotel, she'll be all set to ride a mountain cayuse and join in with the fun and games along with the other Trail Riders.

● To Happiness—Word comes that those plans for the 1948 Trail Ride to take in the country around Mt. Assiniboine are forging ahead and many Trail Riders who have been waiting just for this news can start a-packing their duffle and a-waxing their skis—Oh no, I mean waxing their saddles and cleaning their guns—No again! We are still in the park, so it will have to be cleaning their lens and finding new flies for their tackle (No! I mean their fishing rods)—Gosh, I'm nearly as excited as those members who will be getting their first real view of Mount Assiniboine so I'd better stop before I get too too mixed up.

● And now about Cupid—What is it about a pleasant gang sitting about a campfire that brings thoughts of two-can-live-as-happily-as-one? Well, seems to be that bright moonlight nights in the mountains get all these folks, and our congratulations are to Bill Round and his wife, Eve, who did the diamond hitch in October and are living in Banff—Georgia Engelhard (now Mrs. Cromwell) and Tony Cromwell, living in New York in the winter, but in the Rockies comes summer.

Did everyone see the June copy of National Geographic with the super story and pictures by Topsy Edwards? Keep your eyes open too for Holiday magazine for its Canadian Rockies issue sometime in the new year.

● Wandering Trail Riders—Smokey Patton and her mother stayed in Banff till October, when snowflurries came along.

"Smokey"

Thinking it best to get back to the Lone Star State before they got snowed in, they went off with plans set to be back in Banff by July, 1948.—Buddy Brewster and Johnny Mackay, a couple of the younger cowboys from the dude ranch and well known to all of us, have headed down to Arizona to learn a little more about dude wrangling—Steve Cody of "Howyouall" greetings, and whose leather and silvercraft work will be at the ranch this winter, getting his stock of handicraft ready for the summer.

Here's a nice little news note that I think will please all Trail Riders—Don't think the age of chivalry is over—No, not by a long shot—or should I say a bingo bean? In August when the I.O.D.E. held a bingo, and they were having a very special card on a beautiful blanket, two cards tied for the winner. One holder was Ralph Fuller and the other a bride who was honeymooning in Banff. Good natured Ralph insisted that the bride take the present and everyone went wild with excitement. Ralph got the cheers and the bride the blanket.

And so Adios for now, I'm off to Arizona where the wild men grow, with nothing to guide me but an evening star. Will see youall in 1948.

Pendleton Round-up Thrills Visitors

"It's the tops!" So says Tillie Knight of the Pendleton (Oregon) Round-up, who along with Smokey Patton represented the Trail Riders at the Pendleton show. And when you get through reading Tillie's account you'll agree that the show could not help but impress the visitor. Take it away, Tillie.

IT ALL started when Queen Doreen Richardson of the Calgary Stampede and Eve Brewster, her attendant, our guests on the second ride, told us they were invited to the Pendleton Round-up. So Doc Price and Llew Gardiner of Portland, got to plotting and thought the Trail Riders should be represented down there too. So here's the story of our Canadian American good will trip to the Pendleton Round-up:

It's tops! That's the most fitting expression I can think of about the success of the show as seen by Smokey and myself when we were their guests and represented the Trail Riders of the Canadian Rockies.

The town was gaily decorated and everyone was about in western garb. This is the center of a big farming and ranching district. The rodeo started at 1.15 p.m., with the singing of the American National Anthem, then Queen Patti and her attendants rode in the arena on their beautiful trained horses and greeted the throngs at the show.

At three o'clock there was a grand parade around the arena, forming the figure 8, led by Queen Patti and her attendants, and we were quite honored as visiting Trail Riders to be right along with the Queen. We were mounted on two lovely Tennessee walking horses, then came the officials, judges, Indians, etc. A number of Canadian cowboys were contesting at this show, and when they came out we gave an extra big cheer for them.

One of the pleasantest memories of the show was Doreen Richardson and Eve Brewster making surprise presentation to Queen Patti of a pair of hand tooled cowboy boots and a sterling silver bit, presents from Calgary.

In the evening, the Indian Fantasy "Happy Canyon" was produced, this depicting the Indian in the West and the coming of the white man. It was marvellously done. The Umatilla Indians from the reservations around Pendleton take great pride in putting on this show and it is really grand.

And so we left Pendleton, with the happiest thoughts of new friends we had made there, and hoping in 1948 we would see a number up our way. We know, if we can, we'll be going to the Pendleton show of 1948.

Along the route, we visited with Trail Riders Jock Smith of Vancouver, Jean Wiseman of Spokane, Jim and Elaine Orkney of Yakima, Wash., and showed a beautiful bound Trail Ride book that Photographer Bill Round had prepared and a number of colored slides of Trail Riding.

Ride Highlights In Retrospect

By Llew Gardiner

TOWARDS the end of July of last year 62 dusty, wind-burned and saddle-sore people from all over the United States and Canada jogged into Banff, Alberta, at a surprisingly brisk trot after five full days of riding the moose trails and passes of some of this continent's most rugged and spectacular mountains.

Composed of all ages, from 11 years to those who refuse to admit they're in their late 60's, the group calls itself the Trail Riders of the Canadian Rockies. From the original 14 who formed the organization in the summer of 1923 on a high, rocky plateau beside Tumbling Glacier at the head of Wolverine Pass near Banff, the club has grown until there are now more than 1000 names on the membership rolls. Many are of international fame. Some are artists, scientists, doctors, lawyers, writers. Indian chiefs have served as guides and even the King of Siam and his queen were members of one year's ride. All have in common a love of the majesty and beauty of the Canadian peaks and a love of the outdoors.

Each summer in July the Trail Riders hold two camps of five days each at one or the other of the many beauty spots in Banff, Yoho, Mount Assiniboine or Glacier National Parks. This year's camp was pitched at 8500 feet elevation in the meadows between Simpson Summit and Redearth pass, about 18 miles from Banff, on the shores of one of the region's many unnamed lakes—lakes which teem with Dolly Varden and cutthroat trout. From the base camp daily rides were taken under the direction of horse wranglers and Indian guides, over Simpson Pass, to Egypt and Scarab Lakes in the Pharaoh range, high along Monarch ridge which overhung the camp, and to breath-taking Harvey Pass. Many preferred to wet their lines in the lakes and streams and formed side trips for a day of fishing.

The party assembled at the Mount Royal and Banff Springs hotels in Banff, the morning of the first day. During the night the bedrolls and dunnage bags had been picked up and taken on ahead by pack train, to await the arrival of the party after the first day's ride. The 62 riders were taken by bus to a point west of Banff near Mount Massive, and driven some seven miles up Redearth Creek in jeeps and trucks. There the guides had assembled the horses, each of which had a number painted on its rump and on the saddle, and which was assigned to each member for the duration of the ride.

The first day's ride carried the group up Redearth creek (practically straight up) through enchanting Alpine meadows, over Redearth Pass, and down a three-mile slope into the permanent camp which the guides had pitched. After this initiation, nearly 20 miles, the 19 Indian teepees, made by squaws and painted by braves of the Stoney Indian tribe of Morley, Alberta, and pitched under the direction of Chief Jacob Two-Young-Men, looked downright luxurious. After a substantial meal in the open and a campfire at night, the cheery fire in the center of the teepee was a welcome sight as well as a necessary item in a country where even in midsummer ice often forms on open buckets before the sun rises.

Horses are selected according to the ability of the rider and his own requests, and no one draws a wild cayuse. Membership is open to all ages and all types of people from stenographers to corporation lawyers. Leadership alternates between Canadians and Americans—this year's retiring president, Sidney Hollander of Baltimore, Md., was succeeded by Dr. Harold W. Price of Calgary, Alberta.

Following the ride a powwow is held each year on the lawn of the Banff Springs hotel. There the last dinner is eaten, again in the open, and buttons for the various mileages ridden are distributed.

It's a fitting conclusion to an unforgettable event,

● Trail Riders are reminded that all photographs for the Townsend Competition should be sent in to the Secretary-Treasurer not later than March 15th., 1948.

Trail Riders on the march.

Where Dude Dreams Come True

"This is the life," dudes say after flapjacks and coffee in the rain

By Roland Wild

WALTER POTTS banged his long tin spoon against a battered tray and yelled "Come and Get it!" In answer, a Philadelphia lawyer, a New York banker, a young debutante and a New York actress collected cups and plates and lined up for flapjacks and bacon in the rain. This camp, 7,000 feet high in the Rocky Mountains, is strictly 'dude'—for visitors only. Conditions are such that the bankers, the industrialists and the lawyers have never encountered before, and they are paying good money for it.

We are sleeping in teepees, oldest form of shelter from the summer storms that sweep over the Great Divide. They are white, pointed tents with an adjustable hole at the top to allow the smoke to escape. Inside, the dudes have built themselves little smoky fires of stricks and logs cut from the limitless forests.

The only way to reach this lake is by mountain pony or on foot. For 17 miles we rode over a blazed trail, the rough ponies struggling up the steep track and sliding down into rivers up to the stirrup irons in the torrents. We were too cold, or too hot, or too wet most of the time. But the dudes said: "This is the life".

Art Robillard, the cowboy, has got over some of his astonishment at the behavior of tourists in the course of the years. "Doods", he calls us. He professes to love the cities more than the mountains, and a soft bed better than his spruce-twig couch and sleeping bag. But at heart he is a man of the mountains.

Last night when they turned loose the 60 horses in the meadow, they needed all six cowboys to herd the tired animals away from camp, and the men were herding all night after the long day's ride. Today, one of them fell asleep in the saddle, though to a man who has been riding since he was four, it doesn't make much difference, sleeping or waking. At dawn, the herd was driven in again and the dudes turned out of their teepees to see a sight that thrills because it is primitive and a long way from the city streets.

The cowboy has always been a romantic ideal, in fiction and song. The tunes strummed out in Tin Pan Alley by poets of the range who have never been west of Chicago, strengthen the tradition of the toughness and emotionalism of the cowboy. But Hugh doesn't agree. He rode beside me on a big unbroken horse, and his long legs in blue jeans trailed in huge leather chaps. "Me, I'm for the diplomatic corps," he said. "I can talk French and a little German, and I'm only here to make a few bucks and have a good summer. What d'you think of the situation in Spain?"

The heaviest thing brought in on one pack pony is an accordion. There isn't a chair in camp, and the tables are made of spruce logs and matting. When we pay for escape from civilization, we like to feel we are getting our money's worth.

Six hours' ride away, there's the big hotel a monument to human ingenuity. There are two heated swimming pools against the background of the mountains and the dance band plays for visitors from all over the world.

Walter Potts has given his second raucous call for breakfast. The sun reaches over the snow covered ridge above the timber-line, and the dudes chatter happily away about horses and riding the range while the cowboys huddle together in the traditional crouch of the horseman and discuss the European political situation.

It's a strange world, sometimes.

What do you know?

DO you wonder where your trail riding pals go in the wintertime—or at least between rides—and what they are doing to kill time between now and the next ride?

Of course you do. The esprit de corps experienced on the rides is something that does not vanish with the pow-wow.

Perhaps you wonder what we're driving at so we'll get down to the point. We feel that newsy little items concerning our rank and file are always of interest to readers.

You may have heard of a Trail Rider who has won a new promotion, written a new book, poem or song . . . or another who has married the girl he met on the Rocky trails!

Here's your chance to be a full-fledged keyhole reporter. The editor will be very grateful for all such items. You might also have a good suggestion for improving the column. Send it along too.
